

WE ARE WATER

Poem by Rose Kane, edited by Kapow and Andy Pink

When my hand floats, over your eye
Do you see, half of the sun?
half of the sky?

You're as whole as, the light as I bend around, you to find you to flo-w through

Bodies tur-ning, ov-er un-der
As bright and, as Fierce As lighting
And as thun-der

We are Water
Ripples and waves
And my body knows How your-s will behave

We are Water
vast as an ocean Taking up space
With power and w-ith mo-tion

The movement, will find us and we'll carve, a valley
Of pathways behind us
